

Violet – An Emotional/Spiritual Aura Color

- Inspirational, visionary, charismatic, powerful, magnetic, dynamic, leaders and teachers
- They know they are here to do something important to help uplift humanity and the planet
- They are here as teachers/leaders to educate the masses and to inspire/create positive change
- They have a message to share with the world and feel a strong inner push to express it
- These are older souls who have an innate wisdom and intelligence not of formal education
- As visionaries, they see the future results they're trying to create even if not knowing how to
- They're natural performers who love being the center of attention; can channel inspired info.
- If uncentered, they can get scattered and overwhelmed taking on too many projects at once
OR can become stalemated, not knowing what to do next to accomplish their goals
- Meditation is very important for them so that they can learn to trust and follow their visions
- To many colors, their visions and ideals can seem unrealistic and impractical
- Freedom and independence are necessities so that they can accomplish their life purpose
- They often felt isolated and misunderstood in childhood and still can as adults
- They love to travel to broaden their horizons
- They have incredible emotional depth and compassion; can bond with a partner deeply
- They need an equal partner who shares in their visions and won't hold them back
- They have a strong sex drive and are sexually attractive to other people
- They like being self-employed giving them the freedom to do their life's work
- They feel fulfilled when they've effectively reached the world and inspired positive change

The Life Purpose of someone with the primary color of Violet is to do what they do naturally – to be the inspirational, humanitarian dreamer who is capable of envisioning and manifesting that which others say cannot be done and raising human consciousness in the process.

The Basic Fear of someone with the primary color of Violet is the fear of not doing something deeply meaningful and enlightening in their lifetime.

Violets need work they can believe in and enjoy. There must be a higher purpose to it than just making a living. Most Violets feel as though their life is a calling to do “some meaningful work,” not for ego recognition but for humanity’s sake. They love to travel to expand their minds and better understand how other people live. They require a great deal of freedom to pursue their life’s work. All Violets have a desire to inspire, educate, or help the masses and want to be able to do it from a position of financial independence. Writing and public speaking are two of the most popular ways that Violets educate the masses. They also reach the masses with their CDs, DVDs, audiobooks, websites, correspondence courses, training packages, e-mailed newsletters, radio and TV appearances, and their own seminars, lectures and workshops.

Violets are usually drawn to nine different career areas in order to reach the masses. They are: (1) communications and media, (2) performing arts and entertainment, (3) teaching or lecturing (especially on metaphysical and occult subjects), (4) psychology, (5) ministerial work, (6) politics, (7) law, (8) humanitarian causes, and (9) healing.
